message to Congress can be relied on as a narrative of facts honestly stated. We do not wonder that, according to reopposed thus otherwise to resporting him to his late position. It would seem that the ex-Secretary did grossly compromise himself, not only by words, but by acts. He, for instance, while in the Cabinet, upwards of a year ago, advised the President that the Tenure of Office bill was unconsitutional, and further, that it was the duty of the latter to defend his prerogative of removing and appointing suberdinates, "from usurpation, and to veto the law." It also seems that Mr. Stanton was, as much as any other Cabinet officer, responsible for the plan of reconstruction adopted and pursued by the President. He it was who drew up the plan for Mr. Lincoln in the first place. And he is was wito recommended the continuers of the co opposed than otherwise to restoring him to his late position. It would seem that the ex-Secretary did grossly continuance of that plan to Mr. Lincoln's successor.

"Upon the examination of Mr. Stanton before the Impeachment Committee, he was asked the following question: "Did any one of the Cabnet express a doubt of the power of the Express a doubt of the government to reorganize State governments which had been in rebellion, without the sid of Congress?" He answered—"None, whatever. I had, myself, entertained no doubt of the authority of the President to take measures for the organization of the rebel States on the plan proposed during the vacation of Congress, and agreed in the plan specified in the proclamation in the case of North Carolina."

In regard to the New Orleans riots the President makes some very pointed statements in relation to Mr. Stanton, which if not met and refuted can not help seriously impairing the latter's standing before the country. We quote from that portion of the recent exploded like a bomb-shell in the mid-t the Senate of the effort made to fix that responsibility on the President. The charge was openly made, and again and again reliterated all through the land, that the President was warned in time, but refused to interfere.

5y leigerams from the Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General of Louisiann, dated the 27th and 28th of August, I was advised that a body of delegates, colaring to be a constitutional convention, were about to assemble in New Orleans; that the matter was before the grand jury, but that the would be impossible to execute civil process without a riot, and this question was asked at a time when the civil courts were in the full exercise of their authority, and the nawer sent by telegraph, on the same 28th of August, was this: "The military will be expected to sustain, and not interfere with the proceedings of the courts."

On the same 28th of August the following telegram was sent to Mr. Stanton, by Major General Baird, then lowing to the absence of General Sheridan in command of the military at New Orleans:

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary

bave warned the parties that I could not counterance or permit such action without instruction to that effect from the President. Please instruct me at once by telegraph."

The 28th of August was on Saturday. The next morning, the 29th, this dispatch was received by Mr. Stanton at his residence in this city. He took no action on it, and neither sent instructions to General Baird himself nor presented it to me for such instructions. tions to General Baird himself nor presented it to me for such instructions. On the next day (Monday) the riot oc-curred. I never saw this dispatch from General Baird until some ten days or two weeks after the riot, when, upon my call for all the dispatches, with a view to their publication, Mr. Stanton sent it to me. These facts all appear in the testimony of Mr. Stanton before the

A FUNNY PLACE TO KEEP MONEY.—On Saturday an old colored man from the country, with his wife and boy went into the shoe store of William Howe & Co., and purchasing a pair of boots put them on and stepping to the door threw his old shoes into the street. In a short time he returned, terribly door threw his old shoes into the street. In a short time he returned, terribly frightened at having lost his pocket book, and on search being made for it, (as he was sure he had left it in the store,) it could not be found. His wife at last suspected that he might have thrown it away with his shoes, as he was in the habit of placing his money there when he came to town as a precaution against "buffers." On examining the shoes which were brought from the street the money was found.

CHRISTIAN EGOTISTS Some of the most disagreeable persons that you meet in the world, are these Christian people that are considering everything in the distress from the stand-point of their own author. One of the most blessed things in the world is to be unconscious of self, and consolous only of God, the eternal sphere, and the great truths of the Divine government shid human. Happy is he before whom these things are so culment that his own conscious self is gone. And yet how many woll-menning persons there are who are forever treating you to the various dish of their sensibilities, their siruggles, their temptations, and their wants; with whom it is acontinually I. I. I me, me, me, me, my, my; whose life is one everlasting habit of egotism only basted and served up in religion — Beccher's Royal Truks.

On January Ist, $24,000,000 more interest becomes payable, and nearly $7,000,000 principal of the Sixes of 1887; beside which the Alsaka purchase will probably be settled for during that month. This will give a total supply of $25,000,000 of coin within 2 months. When it is considered that for some time previous to November I, the immense gold transactions of this city were carried on with an average supply in the banks of about $8,000,000, it is obvious that this eight fold increase of supply must tell with great weight upon the premium. At he same time there is no probability of our expose of cold seing important. Our current imports are high, and the late heavy losses of importers have caused limited orders to be given in Europe for the spring trade. Our exports of Western products are comparatively large in amount, and nearly the antire sarplus of cotton has yet to go entere surplus of cotton has yet to go entered and the convertigues.
